As your representatives in the state Legislature, we invite you to join us for a town hall meeting to share your views and discuss solutions to the issues we face here in the 27th Legislative District and the state as a whole.

We're facing tough times. Many people are losing their jobs. Families are losing health care and homes, while others are just barely scraping by.

The Legislature began the 2011 session in January, and we've already taken big steps to promote economic development and address our state budget challenges. But we're not done, and we need your help.

While Washington faces these challenges, we're still committed to creating opportunity for everyone. How do we build on our strong foundation of educated, hard-working people and assure opportunity for small businesses, working people, and major industries? How do we make sure that we don't turn our backs when our neighbors are in need? And how do we serve as caretakers of our state's natural beauty and our children's quality of life? These are the tough questions we need to discuss as we work to balance the budget. We've resolved a $12 billion budget shortfall over the past two years. This year we are addressing an additional $5 billion shortfall.

We're eager to hear your questions and suggestions so that we can emerge from this recession as quickly and strongly as possible. If you can't attend, we encourage you to share your thoughts by calling the Legislative Hotline, toll-free, at 1-800-562-6000, or by emailing us.
